ENGLAND FACES POLITICAL CRISIS THROUGH THE VOTE

TURNING DOWN OF THE BUDGET
BY THE HOUSE OF LORDS
MAY MEAN END OF POWER OF THAT BODY.

AN APPEAL TO THE PEOPLE

Liberals Will Issue Remonstrance
Against Invasion of Their Rights
by the House.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Dec. 1.—Not for three hundred years has England faced the same crisis that now confronts it. The refusal of the House of Lords to give their consent to the budget bill and referring it to the people themselves for judgment, thereby, in theory, making it impossible to collect taxes and carry on the King's government, has stirred the English people to the core.

The vote of this body which passed in final judgment on the budget that bids fair to lessen its power, to add new taxes to the realm and otherwise upturn existing conditions, was 350 to 75. They disregarded the advice of those members of English government—Hoseberry, Morley, Lord James of Hereford, Lord Cromer, Lord Balfour, the Earl of Lytton, Lord Courtney, the archbishops of Canterbury and York and voted against the measure.

The debate had lasted six days. Throughout the spirit of the lords was displayed. The members, the peers having right to sit in judgment, had been assembled from all parts of the realm by the Tory whips who opposed the measure. Every possible light was shown upon the budget and what it stood for, but in vain. It was turned down and England faces a crisis in its political history.

Lord Lansdowne's resolution which placed this measure upon the country to decide, was bitterly opposed by the Liberal leaders. There are many who say that the action of the lords in turning down the budget and adopting the Lansdowne measure have spelled the ruin of the power of the house of lords.

"Suicide of the House of Lords" was the caption in one of the strong Liberal papers this morning. The editorial in these papers all place the question strongly before the voters in view of the coming election that is certain to come immediately.

Today the cabinet, which had already determined upon its policy in case the Lansdowne resolution was carried, have begun their work. They met unusually early and are carefully considering the wording of the motion that Premier Asquith will offer to the house of commons to adopt. This motion will constitute the formal remonstrance against what the Liberals consider has been an invasion of the rights of the lower house by the peers and will be the campaign slogan in the coming election.

Never before in the history of England has the annual budget been held up by the lords. Never, of course, has it been held up by the commons, except temporarily, and then only for strategic purposes by some small faction in the house which, at the time, was the balance of power. To understand, therefore, the peculiar appearance of the budget for 1909 has caused in the British nation, the story of the budget, from the beginning must be told.

Genesis Of 1909 Budget.

Herbert Henry Asquith, the present premier, took hold of the government in April, 1908, and among his cabinet appointments was that of David Lloyd-George to the important post of chancellor of the exchequer. Lloyd-George, although but 40 and the holder of no office previous to his appointment, except the presidency of the board of trade, almost half of his life, having been for various constituencies since 1890, and was therefore a hard-boiled politician, used to parliamentary strife, when he took up the difficult job of straightening out the financial troubles of his country.

This now famous budget was introduced into the commons in the beginning of May last, and so novel was the nature of it, so deeply did it cut into the pockets of the rich, and so radically did it propose to change the relation of the land owner to the state, that the British was unable for a few days to realize what it meant. As soon, however, as its real meaning was discerned, a spontaneous outburst went up from all classes of well-to-do persons, especially from the lords and the big land owners, who were particularly hard hit by the proposed new scheme for raising revenue.

Defect Of $80,000,000.
Lloyd-George had a deficit of about $80,000,000 to fill up—that is, he was required to raise that much revenue in addition to the regular intake. This extraordinary sum was needed for new war ships, for increased army improvements, for old-age pensions and other things requiring ready money. Coming at a time when nearly 1,000,000 men were unemployed in England, the budget at once became a ready argument for all sorts of people who were pained with the new chancellor's heretofore unheard-of innovations.

From the first the measure was denounced by the "classes" as socialist and revolutionary. On the other hand, it was heartily protected by the malcontents of the house of lords who never consented to it and in not consenting to it they would precipitate a revolution which would overthrow the old aristocratic government that had been so long in vogue in the British constitution.

Budget Is Revolutionary.

Socialistic and revolutionary the budget in reality was. The socialists all rallied to its support, not because they were entirely satisfied with it, but because it was a step in their direction, and because it was a body blow at the lords and the wealthy classes in general. It was definitely ously denounced as a revolution by many of the leaders of the Tories who were amazed at the ingenuity with which Lloyd-George had accomplished a feat of statesmanship which had hitherto been deemed impossible.

This fact was the development of a tax upon the rich which would be what the economists call "effective," that is, which would hit the parties at whom it had been aimed. It was clear to everybody that if this budget were to go into force, with the new machinery for the collection of the taxes proposed by it, there would be no available way of dodging it or of shifting the burden on shoulders lower down, and at least one new principle of government would be enunciated.

On the day after the publication of the terms of the budget its meaning was crisply described by the London Financial Times which said that the deficit was to be raised at the expense of the wealthy and well-to-do "who are struck at in all sorts of ways—through the income tax, legacy duties, estate duties, stamps upon their investments, their land, their royalties, their brewery dividends, and their automobiles."

Land Tax Nub of War

But the wealthy and the well-to-do did not object to the majority of the provisions of the budget which were, after all, only a considerable expansion of existing taxation. For this increase of ordinary taxes the commons passed its "finance resolutions" which became operative at once. The higher tax upon tea, alcoholic beverages, automobiles and so on, went into effect at once because the machinery for its collection was already in use. And it was not this increase, large as it was, that has been denounced as revolutionary and controversial.

It was the new principle of taxation the budget contained—a tax on undeveloped land, of a reversion tax on ground leases, of a tax on the unearned increment of land value, of a tax of 5 per cent on the income of royalties on mining lands—it was all this that the Tories objected to and have fought tooth and nail in the house of lords and out of it.

This part of the budget could not be included in the commons' finance resolutions, and thus the measure, effective at once, because there was no machinery already provided for its working. And so, in spite of the supposed supremacy of the commons in all revenue legislation, the budget went to the house of lords for ratification—to a house of lords who hated ratification as they might hate poison.

The Lansdowne Motion

When the second reading of the budget bill was moved in the house of lords on Nov. 22 Lord Lansdowne, leader of the opposition, offered an amendment that it be rejected because "this house is not justified in giving its consent to this bill until it has been submitted to the judgment of the country."

Lord Rosebery, during the course of an address, said: "This is the greatest political moment in the lifetime of any man born since 1832." In that year the last great struggle between the commons and the lords arose over the reform bill. This resulted in new elections, the formation of a new cabinet and the continuation of the struggle, the ministers again leaving office. On the reorganization of the cabinet, under the menace of additions to their numbers, the peers abstained from further opposition, and the great charter of 1832 received the royal assent.

Among others who spoke on it were Rothschild, who spoke for the financial interest, and told how capital would leave the country if the measure were adopted which the lords had tacked on to Lansdowne, who spoke for the rights of the landlords, and Morley, a liberal, and his brother-in-law, who was a peer, to pause before voting for the revolution as freely prophesied on all hands.

Lords In Crafty Move

The position taken by the lords has been described as a peculiarly cunning one. They have tried to turn the entire question around with the back to the front, making the point that in refusing to put their imprimatur on such a revolutionary measure without submitting it to the people they are conserving the British tradition of popular government. This was a flank movement on the friends of the measure, in and out of the commons, so that the present situation stands itself up in the following proposition:

If the country turns down the budget it will have signified its disapproval to the whole Lloyd-George system of government. The British parliament will then come together satisfied that the ancient state of things must prevail.

If, on the contrary, the country sends back a liberal government, the world will wait with anxiety to see how far the revolutionists will carry the proposals of Lloyd-George and his friends to establish a system of government new in the world's economy.

ADDED VALUES TO ELECTRIC LINES

SIX AND A HALF MILLION DOLLARS IS ASSESSED VALUATION DECIDED ON.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Janesville Line Has Same Assessment As Last Year—Way Matters Are Adjusted.

Madison, Wis., Dec. 1.—While the state tax commission added six and a half million dollars to the assessed valuation of street and interurban railways property of Wisconsin according to the tentative 1909 assessment announced yesterday, the assessment of the Janesville street car system remained unchanged from the $27,000 valuation placed upon that property a year ago. In view of the fact that the Janesville property was transferred a day or so ago at a figure said to be $45,000, it appears that the assessed valuation is above 52% of the selling value, which is considerably higher than the average of assessment of general property throughout the state.

While the Janesville system has gained the enviable reputation of being the worst street car system in Wisconsin, it is not the smallest in point of assessed valuation, for there are two other roads assessed at less. The assessment of the Bay Shore road and of the La Crosse and Anna Joloka road was last year assessed at $18,000. Last year there were 24 of these properties assessed, while this year the number is 26. Almost every road has been advanced in valuation. It is assumed that the valuation of this property in Wisconsin will greatly increase from year to year from now on, as the state is believed to be on the threshold of an era of this kind of railroad construction.

Last year the total valuation of these properties was $33,922,000, and this year it is placed at $40,470,000. The increase is a little over 18%, which on the basis of the total of $20,000,000 taxes collected from these properties last year, means an increase of about $7,000 this year in the amount of taxes to be collected from this class of property. Last year the 15% retained by the state amounted to $5,089,000 and the remainder, amounting to $3,832,000, was distributed among the cities, towns and villages through which the roads ran. The division is a complicated process, being figured out according to earnings. Last year the Janesville property paid $426 taxes, of which about $61 went to the state and $365 was turned into the local treasury. This figure will be about the same this time, depending upon the rate to be applied, which is the rate found by the state tax commission to be the rate paid on the average by the general property in the state.

SOLDIER WHO BORE MESSAGE TO GARCIA WAS RETIRED TODAY

Major Andrew Rowan, Made Famous in Cuban War By Daring Exploit, Ends Long Service in Army.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1.—The United States army lost one of its bravest and most conspicuous officers today when Major Andrew S. Rowan, who lately has been on duty at Fort Douglas, Utah, was placed on the retired list after more than thirty-two years' service.

Major Rowan is known popularly all over the land as the "man who took the message to Garcia." He was a first lieutenant in the Nineteenth Infantry when his great opportunity came during the war with Spain. Newly arising from the dispatching of a trustworthy messenger to Gen. Calixto to Garcia to ascertain whether the Cuban army could co-operate with the army of the United States, Lieut. Rowan was selected by Gen. Miles, Garcia was somewhere in the interior of Cuba, surrounded on all sides by the Spanish forces, and the trip consequently was one fraught with great danger.

Rowan made his way to Kingston, Jamaica, thence overland to the north coast of that island, where he slipped away in a sail boat for the south shore of Cuba, landing between Guantanamo and Santiago. He made his way to the interior of the island and found Gen. Garcia in the neighborhood of Manzanillo. Part of the time Rowan had passed as a Spaniard and part of the time as a Cuban. Delivering his message, he started to return, well aware that if he had been captured he would have been hanged like Nathan Hale and Major Andre.

65TH BIRTHDAY OF QUEEN OF ENGLAND

Occasion Celebrated in Usual Manner With Salutes, Ringing Of Bells, and Display Of Flags.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

London, Dec. 1.—The sixty-fifth birthday of Queen Alexandra was celebrated today with the usual heartiness throughout the kingdom, by artillery salutes, the ringing of church bells, and the display of flags. Her Majesty spent the day at Sandringham, surrounded by an unusually large gathering of the royal family. Greetings poured in from all parts of the world, and numerous handsome presents were received from the King and other members of the royal family and from relatives among the reigning families on the Continent.

The Queen is reported to be in better general health than she has been for a long time, thanks to her long visit the past summer in Norway and Denmark. In future her duties during the London season are to be lightened. There is talk of cutting down the number of courts and other state functions next year, while the Princess of Wales and the Duchess of Cornwall will undertake many duties that have been carried out by the Queen in the past.

Queen Alexandra was born in Copenhagen on December 1, 1811, the eldest of the late King of Denmark's three daughters. She married the Prince of Wales, now King Edward VII., of England, in King George's Chapel, Windsor, March 10, 1865, and claims six children and nine grandchildren.

Of her children—three sons and three daughters—four are living. Her third son, Prince Alexander, born April 6, 1871, lived only one day. The eldest son, the Duke of Clarence, died in 1892, at the age of twenty-eight.

The second son, George, Prince of Wales, is forty-four years old, and is the father of five sons and one daughter, ranging in age from 15 to 5 years of age.

The eldest of the Queen's daughters, Princess Louise, wife of the Duke of Fife, is the mother of two daughters, one of whom has been prominently mentioned of late as a possible consort for the young King of Portugal.

The Queen's second daughter, Princess Victoria, now just 40, has never married. The youngest daughter, Princess Maud, became Queen of Norway four years ago, and her only child, Prince Olaf, six years old, will be King of Norway some day if nothing happens.

Enjoyable Dance: A large crowd of young people attended and enjoyed the dance given by the Crescent Dancing club at East Side Odd Fellows' hall last evening.

- 1881—Again elected President. Law against re-election having been abrogated.

City of Mexico, Dec. 1.—President Diaz today rounded out twenty-five years of continuous service as head of the Republic. In celebration of the anniversary flags were everywhere displayed and during the day the aged President was kept busy receiving deputations bearing felicitous messages and greetings from all parts of the country. All the leading newspapers of the capital today contained articles calling attention to the anniversary and recalling Mexico and her people to what they owe to the soldier and statesman, who has devoted his life to the welfare and development of his country.

It is no exaggeration to state that under the rule of Diaz Mexico has become a new land. For 300 years Spain ruled the country in the same manner that she ruled her other colonial possessions, for the benefit of Spain and Spaniards. The flag of revolt against Spanish authority was raised on September 16, 1810, but independence was not proclaimed until eleven years later, when Iturbide made his triumphant entry into the capital. The next sixty years marked a period of almost incessant domestic warfare, during which time comparatively little progress was made. Then came Mexico's strong man, Porfirio Diaz.

A quarter of a century of good government under the rule of Diaz has effected an almost incredible change in Mexico. Diaz saw that political peace and industrial prosperity were alike dependent upon railway communication. In 1875, two years before the first election of General Diaz, Mexico had only about 300 miles of railway. Twenty years later she had nearly 7,000 miles, and she has today approximately 20,000 miles. Much of this work has been done by a costly system of subsidies, but there can be no question of the wisdom of the investment. Aside from the railways on the industrial growth of Mexico, without them it would have been practically impossible for President Diaz to put into effect those political reforms which converted the country from a land of almost uninterrupted war into a land of peace and law and order.

During the twenty-five years that he has held uninterrupted sway over the destinies of Mexico, President Diaz, in addition to constructing railways and telegraphs, has introduced a national surplus of $20,000,000, encouraged home industries, placed colonies on a gold basis, developed agricultural and mining resources, established an efficient public school system, abolished the religious congregations, and, by cultivating the good-will of foreign nations, given Mexico a new status among the world powers.

CIVIC AFFAIRS WERE DISCUSSED

BY MEN'S CLUB OF BAPTIST CHURCH LAST EVENING.

COMMISSION GOVERNMENT

And Present System Were Discussed As to Advantages and Disadvantages of Each.

At the meeting of the Men's club of the Baptist church, held last evening in the church parlors, the question of "City Government by Commission" was taken up and thoroughly discussed. The advantages and disadvantages of the proposed system and the strong and weak points of the present form of government were talked on at some length. Sixty men were present at the meeting and enjoyed the dinner served by the helpful Circle shortly after half past six. The leader of the session was Dr. John H. Whillam.

The first speaker of the evening was W. S. Pond, who presented the "Monoliths of Government by Commission." After outlining briefly the Wisconsin law as passed at the last session of the legislature, Mr. Pond gave three principal reasons why the commission form of government is better than the present system, as follows:

First, It secures a non-partisan election, wherein the people vote rather for the man than the party he stands for.

Second, It abolishes the ward lines of the city and gives a wider range from which to select the men for the offices.

Third, It puts the control of city affairs in the hands of business men who are paid to attend to the duties connected with the city government.

(a) Under the present system changes are made too frequently; one man serves a term as alderman and then as he has become familiar with the city affairs, he is turned out of office and another man is put in. (b) Under the commission system the commission has no club held over its head and it does not have to cater to a ring. The men who are in charge have an opportunity for working out their own ideas.

"While commission government puts the control of the city in the hands of three men," he continued, "it also puts a great responsibility on the voters to select the right men."

The opposite side of the question, "The Disadvantages of Commission Government," were given by Stanley G. Dunwiddie. Three principal reasons for not adopting the proposed form of city government, as given by him, were:

1. Governments long established should not be changed for any light and transient reason, such a change being dangerous.

2. No city is governed better than the people, who are its citizens, want it to be.

3. The dangers of the government by commission in our case more than outweigh the advantages.

In detail, he said that one of the chief dangers would be:

(a) The adoption of the plan by a city where circumstances warranted it might cause another city to imitate them, though in the latter conditions might be perfectly satisfactory.

(b) Any change of such a nature is dangerous because you can not tell how it will work out.

(c) Any city is governed as good or as poor as the people want it.

(d) Centralization of power would be good or bad for the city according to the kind of men who were elected to the offices.

(e) The salary will not be enough to attract good business men because they must give their entire time to it, and it will draw the business failures and the scheming politicians.

(f) The proposed form of government gives more chances for graft. There is no limit to the number of officers that the commission may appoint.

Ray Carter rendered two excellent piano solos, and H. F. Hill was called upon to speak. His talk was in favor of a commission, giving the reasons why the law was not made so as to allow for a recall of the city officers should their work become unsatisfactory to certain elements; how the recall would be more harmful than good. Another point he brought out was that for every dollar expended by the commission the city would receive one dollar value. The condition of the streets of Janesville was quoted as an example of small results from an immense expenditure of money, the fault being due to inexperience. Out of 3,500 voters, 2,800 of whom are paying taxes on real estate, we should be able to elect three good men.

Taking up the present form of government, P. C. Burpee spoke of the advantages of the system. He made a comparison of present and proposed plans. The following points were brought out:

1. Under the present system the people have a voice in the handling of municipal affairs and the election of most of the city officers.

2. The objection to the commission form is the divided responsibility. Under the present system you have undivided responsibility in the mayor.

3. There is a danger of two of the commissioners combining against the third.

4. The commission form would not save the city any money in conducting city affairs, and there is not enough work to do in Janesville to pay $5,000 to have three men do it.

4. The non-partisan feature can be secured without a change. Deloit is an example.

"The evils of the Present System" were told of by A. J. Clark. First of these, was the absence of authority in men at the head of the various departments. Second, politics enter too much into the selection of men to handle the business of the city. Third, the business of the city is not handled in a business-like manner, as any corporation would attempt to conduct a business. Fourth, under the old system the city has shown no progress or improvement in the last fifty years. There has been no systematic method of improving. The streets were compared to the "Hump the Humps," and other thrillers at amusement resorts, for the people who rode on them.

Following Mr. Clark's speech the discussion of both plans of government became quite general.

Stanley G. Dunwiddie was selected as leader of the next meeting to be held in January.

LURED FROM WIFE BY HIS OWN FACES. The above photograph is of Howard C. Chandler Christy and the sketches are of some of his famous drawings.

Christy.—Howard Chandler Christy, the famous artist and creator of many famous art characters, left Cincinnati early this morning for the south taking with him his daughter, Natalie Chandler Christy aged 15, and his sister Miss Rose Christy. The artist admitted while here that he was running away from his wife who had had a nervous collapse proceeding from a cold in Janesville, Ohio, on Friday, he got possession of their little girl. Christy gave this version of the trouble:

"There was entirely too much of my wife's family. And then she likes New York City and I do not. I have a country place to move below Janesville, and wanted to stay there and work. But she wanted to get back to New York. She told me she would not bury herself in that old Ohio. She likes society and I like the open air the woods and hills and trees where a man can breathe through his nose and enjoy it."

"I got a tip Friday that my sister and I got ready our things and here we are. Well, he there tomorrow and some place else the next day I'm going to take Natalie to Cuba, and we'll have a nice time down there this winter. We may come back in the spring or we may go to Europe. But my wife won't get the child."

"Somebody in New York has been advising my wife against me and I promise you I'll make it hot for them if I find out who it was. It may be that after a while I'll write to Mrs. Christy and suggest that she join me in Cuba but I surely will do nothing of the kind till we get to Cuba and away from anybody that's helping her."

Wholesale Slaughter of Crows.

Bedford, Ind., Dec. 1.—Farmers within six miles of this city have organized a shotgun movement against a gigantic crows' roost. Hundreds of thousands of the birds make a field about five miles from Bedford their sleeping apartment and every day they scatter as far south as the Ohio river, 15 miles away, for food. The farmers say the crows have laid waste the corn crop in the counties over which they fly.

Chicago and North-Western STRIKE TALK HEARD IN THE NEW YARDS

Big Switchmen's Trouble in North-West Would Not Affect Janesville.

Although 2,500 switchmen, switch-tenders and trainmen, employed by thirteen railroads centering in St. Paul and Minneapolis, struck for higher wages last night at six o'clock, the general topic of conversation among railroad men in this city is not concerned so much with the details or merits of the strike itself as it is with the general effect on every railroad man should the strike spread and involve the switchmen in Chicago and perhaps even the great Order of Railroad Trainmen.

The strike itself comes as the result of three days' fruitless negotiations between the officers of the Switchmen's Union of North America and the joint committee of railroad managers representing thirteen roads of the northwest. Statements have been issued by both the managers and union officers and show a wide divergence in the presentation of the merits of the strike. The men demand an increase in wages of 6 cents per hour and in addition ask for double time on holidays and overtime, which includes infringement on the meal hour, and an elimination of the physical examination and age limit placed on switchmen when entering the service. However, the point that could not be settled and upon which the whole fight hinges is the increase in wages for the railroads claim that, should the demands be complied with, the cost of switching would be increased at least forty to fifty per cent.

While it is generally conceded here that the companies are right in their statement that switchmen are receiving good wages, everyone is of the opinion that they earn every cent they get and that this statement does not apply to switch-tenders and the other classes also involved, who do not get the wages to which the difficulty of their work entitles them.

As is generally known, the Trainmen's Order is not acting with the switchmen in their efforts to secure higher wages and this powerful organization will doubtless remain neutral during the struggle. This fact would have a great deal of influence in Janesville should the switchmen's strike become general all over the country, for most of the switchmen in this city are not members of the switchmen's union, but belong to the O. R. T. and would act in accordance with the decision of that body. A few, however, belong to the O. R. T. and some are members of both organizations.

According to the latest dispatches, while the strike has completely tied up traffic in the northwest, it has not yet spread to Chicago, where the switchmen are also very strong. It is the opinion of many that the union officials are using Chicago as a club to enforce their demands and if the tie-up at the Twin Cities is not sufficient, the men will be called out at Chicago. Should this happen, the situation would be felt immediately in Janesville on both roads. Even at the present time, both systems are having all sorts of difficulty in handling the enormous fall traffic, and were the switchmen to strike it would not take a day before the Chicago yards would be seved up so tight that hardly a single box-car could be moved.

It is hardly probable that men could be secured to take the strikers' places, and the monetary loss which would result from the delay and the confusion caused by inexperienced men and locomotives would be enormous. Not only would the movement of trains out of the city be stopped, but it would be impossible to bring any freight to Chicago from any outside point and this would be felt by every trainman working on freight on roads that enter Chicago.

There is but one point in regard to the demands of the switchmen that has excited adverse comment. No one has yet been found who could see any reason for the clause that eliminates a physical examination. Were this eliminated a switchman who was physically unfit would not only endanger the company's property but also the lives of those with whom he was working.

Thus far the effects of the walk-out have not been felt in this city except that it is claimed that train 505 on the C. & N. W. due here at 6:05 a. m., was held up an hour at Minneapolis. The character of the freight destined for points in the northwest has changed however, for orders have been issued from the general offices not to accept perishable freight shipped to those points. Although shipments in this city have not been affected up to the present time, if the strike continues or spreads to Chicago this fact will be felt and that in no slight degree. Christmas goods imported from the far east arriving from the coast, and American goods from the great wholesale houses in Chicago would be tied up and the Christmas trade demoralized.

That the roads will concede to the demands made or a compromise will be suggested which will be acceptable to both sides, seems to be the general impression. All acknowledge that the strikers could not have chosen a better time to walk out than the present, when there is more freight than can be adequately taken care of, but at the same time everyone hopes that the roads will be so very lenient in the matter that the men who are pulling down big wages than at any time since the last strike.

NEW ENGINES HAVE TO HAUL LONG TRAINS

Judging from the number of cars that the class Z engines are forced to haul, the old joke that telephone connections between the cab and engine would be the next improvement made, seems well on the road to adoption. Engineer Koehnke and Fireman Miller with engine 1180 brought in eighty-six cars from Baraboo yesterday at four o'clock. Most of the cars were loaded and the aggregate tonnage totaled 2,000 tons. This, however, is not the limit, for word has been received that another class Z followed the 1180 with ninety-seven cars. With a train of this size there is no exaggeration to the statement that it is difficult for the engineer to make out the signals of the rear-end brakeman.

Fireman Fleming came up in the south-bound pool last night on 537 with Engineer McMorrow.

Train 508 was held up for an hour yesterday afternoon by the south-bound extra with eighty-six cars. She did not pull in until after four o'clock.

Engineer M. R. Dille, dead-headed down last night to take Engineer Strumpe's place in the north-bound pool. Engine 1116, which came up on an extra from the south yesterday afternoon, was turned over to the Madison Division for service and left for Milwaukee at four o'clock.

Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul. Engineer Barker and Fireman Dooley, had the second switch-engine last night.

Engineer Hillemeier was on 72 and 73 last night with Engineer Allen.

Fireman Davies has reported for work on 191 and 192 after a short lay-off.

Engineer Wilkinson and Fireman Green took out 165 last night.

Engineer Higgins and Fireman Rooney went out on an extra at 5:25 this morning with engine 761.

Fireman Iscoe has Engineer Kennedy's place on the south-bound switch-engine today with Engineer Palmer.

Engineer Scheler and Fireman Hummel took an extra east this morning at 8:50 with engine 1752.

Engineer Meyer and Fireman McAuliffe took 91 out this morning with engine 179.

GEORGE W. PERKINS
(Staff Special)

Detroit, Mich.—The recent elevation of George W. Perkins to the head of the Pere Marquette marks another step in dramatic rise of this railroad king and financial wizard.

Among the financial engineers who have come prominently before the public within comparatively recent years George Walbridge Perkins stands out as an example to young men who have their own ways to make and who are willing to work hard to accomplish that end. Mr. Perkins is today a partner in the banking firm of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., started his business career about 20 years ago as an office boy on probation. He was given a salary of $25 a month on condition that he made no blunders or mistakes and everything that he was told to do promptly. He did as he was told, and if he made any blunders or mistakes, there is no record of them for the time he filled the position of office boy in the Chicago office of the New York Life Insurance company. This was in 1879. During the latter part of that year Mr. Perkins, who was not yet 16 years of age, was made a clerk at a salary of $1,200 a year. He continued in this position at the same salary until 1883 when he became cashier in the Cleveland office at a salary of $1,500. In 1886 he left the position of cashier and went into the field as an agent for the company, traveling in the extreme western parts of the United States and gaining knowledge that fitted him for the position of agency director, to which he was appointed in 1888. A year later he was appointed inspector of agencies in the Rocky Mountain district, which included six mountain states. His salary had increased steadily and had grown to the substantial sum of $15,000 a year, when in 1892 the office of third vice president was created by the New York Life and Mr. Perkins was elected to it and placed in charge of the company's agencies throughout the world. This carried with it a salary of $20,000 a year. Within a short time Mr. Perkins was elected a member of the board of trustees of the company, and in 1898, on the death of the then second vice president, he was elected to that position and a few weeks later was elected to the finance committee. In 1900 he was made chairman of the finance committee and in 1903 was promoted to the position of vice president of the company. From 1901 Mr. Perkins has been $75,000 a year and this salary continued until he resigned the vice presidency of the company in 1905.

From the time that Mr. Perkins started to do agency work he became a necessity to the development of the New York Life Insurance company. He put into practice plans for the increase of business which worked out so perfectly that within a very short time the company was doing a larger business by a vast amount than any other insurance company in the world. It was the work of Mr. Perkins and all those concerned in the conduct of the affairs of the company realized that it was the work. He had a free hand and unbridled was allowed to give full play to his imagination and his energy.

His work stood out so prominently that it attracted the attention of J. Pierpont Morgan, and Mr. Morgan sent for him and made him a flattering offer. Mr. Perkins considered the matter well and although it meant a big improvement in his financial condition he was wrapped up in the work of the New York Life that he sacrificed the opportunity to continue to carry on the work that he had laid out.

Mr. Morgan who has probably been more successful in authorizing about him men of financial genius than any other living man, was not so easily put off. He came forward in a short time with another offer while allowed Mr. Perkins to continue in the employ of the New York Life. So in 1901 Mr. Perkins became a partner in the firm of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., New York; Drexel, Morgan & Co., Philadelphia and Morgan, Harjes & Co., Paris.

In this new position Mr. Perkins has even greater opportunity to exercise his wonderful gift of independent action in stupendous undertakings. He has become one of the very first figures in the financial world and is today a worker who counts not the hours that are required of him to do the work that he feels must be accomplished within the 24 hours of each day.

Besides his connection with the Morgan firm, Mr. Perkins is a director in the following concerns: Astor Trust company, Bankers' Trust company, Cheltenham, Hamilton & Dayton Railroad company, Dayton & Union Railroad company, German-American insurance company, International Mercantile Marine company, Marquette & Bessmer Dock and Navigation company, National City Bank of New York city, Northern Pacific Railway company, Northern Securities company and the United States Steel corporation.

Mr. Perkins is president and director of the Toledo Railway and Terminal company, chairman of the board of directors of the Pere Marquette Railroad company chairman of the executive committee and director of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad company, vice president and director of the Great Central Duck company, chairman of the finance committee and director of the National Harvester company, trustee of the New York Trust company and trustee of Vassar college.

Mr. Perkins is a member of the executive committee of the New York State Bankers' association, president of the New York Palisades Interstate Park commission, member of the board of managers of the executive committee of the New York Botanical gardens, trustee of the New York Science and Historic Preservation society, honorary vice president of the Park District Protective league, member of the museum of natural history, member of the Metropolitan Museum of Arts member of the Society of the Lying in hospital and a director and member of the finance committee of the Young Men's Christian association.

"RESTRAINT OF TRADE"

"After all, what does the Sherman act mean by 'restraint of trade'? Is a trade restrained by being properly organized? Is it restrained when the men of large ideas have succeeded the men of small ideas? Is it restrained when it is rescued from the anarchy and waste of competition, and lifted up to a level where it can pay good wages and deliver a good product? Is it restrained when it oversteps the whole earth, and advertises American commodities in fifty countries, and brings back to the United States $75,000,000 a year?"

"Possibly, the Standard Oil Co., which has brought in a thousand millions of foreign gold in the last twenty years, deserves to be torn limb from limb just because nobody loves it, but does anyone seriously believe that it has restrained the business of producing oil?"

"All sensible men admit that regulation of the great corporations is at least a workable alternative to general government ownership, and it is necessary also that we should secure enforcement of pure food and health laws by efficient inspection. To do this we establish a machine which is useful as long as its object is kept in sight. We must guard against the tendency to assume that the machine itself is the important thing and not the object for which it was created."

"Our public service commissions are so anxious to safeguard the public that they become an obstacle to progress. They can protect the public and they do so to a certain extent, but they forget that one of their duties is to expedite the solving of the problems of transportation."

"The Interstate Commerce commission is doing useful work and accumulating a mass of statistics which is invaluable to students of the railroad question. One of the objects of the existence of that commission, however, is to expedite the work of the railroads. What we want in this country is to get our work done. We have a great and growing amount of work to do, and a commission which, with the best intentions in the world, throws obstacles in the way of its performance, is likely to accomplish more harm than good. After all the commission is created for the service of the public and the railroads, and if we cannot have co-operation between the commission and the railroads we know that we can live without the commission; we cannot get along without the railroads."

"This growth of a machine larger than the work calls for is as old as history. Instances of just such bureaucracy can be traced by any student of history. Momus gives some striking instances both of the earlier Roman and the Byzantine empires. The vice is not peculiarly democratic. The incident narrated could have happened in France, whose ballot is swayed by an excessive number of citizens who believe that the country exists only to supply them with jobs."

"Let us by all means have efficient regulation, but we do not want a system where the American public gets the two shells of the oyster, with an assurance that the rest of it was free from typhoid germs."

"This is the way the Wall Street Journal sizes up the situation, and while the sentiment may not be popular, it is sound to the core. The fight against the Standard Oil company is a senseless fight because the people have no grievance.

"The same is largely true in the much-discussed pure food crusade. Pure oleomargarine, for instance, is just as healthy and a good deal more wholesome than creamy butter, as everybody knows who has examined the factories which produce the two outfits."

"The fight on oleo masquerades under the guise of the pure food laws, when in fact it is nothing but class legislation. The man who wants oleo should be permitted to buy it colored, the same as butter, and the price should be kept within his reach. But at from 25 to 50 cents is a luxury which many people can not afford. Oleo, properly colored, is a good substitute and the people want it."

"The country is not suffering for more regulation. It has too much already. The people of Alabama so decided Monday when they voted on state-wide prohibition. The cities of the south, like all other cities, are obliged to govern themselves, and it is an injustice when either a state or county passes laws for their regulation which they can not enforce."

RICHARD WATSON GILDER

Announcement is made of the sudden death of Richard Watson Gilder, who for the past 28 years has been the editor-in-chief of the Century Magazine. Personally he was largely lost in editorial work that but few writers are known beyond the sanctum, and yet personality has much to do with the success and influence of all publications.

So the life of Mr. Gilder was woven into the magazine which he so ably edited, and his work will be missed by the large constituency which appreciated it without knowing the man. An advance notice sent out by the Century company contains this paragraph:

"Another note which runs through his life, his editorial writing and his poetry—a note that deepened with the advance of years—is that of personal responsibility. He felt that institutions were in the last analysis merely men, and that ours could be preserved only by the virtue and altruism of the individual citizen. The scorn he felt for those who were wilfully recreant to their political duties was like that of a soldier for a deserter. His humility and self-effacement gave sincerity to his appeals to the best in every one. He had the keenest sense of noblesse oblige, and in all his spiritual and beautiful verse there is nothing more expressive of the chivalry of his life than these lines, the aspiration of which he embodied in his career:

"When to sleep I must
 Where my fathers sleep;
 When fulfilled the trust,
 And the mourners weep;
 When, though free from rust,
 Sword hath lost its worth—
 Let me bring to earth
 No dishonored dust."

Wisconsin is to be the stamping ground for insurgents, and the state will be flooded with oratory. Inasmuch as the primary election is a year away the effort will prove a waste of energy. A good many things will happen during the year and long before it closes disloyalty will not be as popular as it is today. There is only one republican party and political orphans are not numerous enough to disturb it to any great extent."

The College of Agriculture, connected with the state university, has a department of horse-breeding which sends out statistics, and other information to the press of the state; requesting co-operation for the improvement of stock. If the university will turn its attention to the obnoxious law, which drove so many horse breeders out of the state, and influence its repeal, the industry will take care of itself.

The switchmen's strike, involving thirteen roads running north and west from St. Paul, will paralyze business unless speedily settled. The companies feel that the demands are unreasonable, and argue that wages were not reduced during the panic, but the men are firm, and not disposed to compromise. It is an unfortunate situation from which the unfortunate will suffer.

People are taking an interest in the commission plan of government, and will be able to vote intelligently on the question when it is submitted. This is as it should be for ignorance concerning home rule is inexcusable. The government that touches the pocketbook is the city government, and every taxpayer should be interested in having a clean business administration.

The money lost in cities is not so much from graft as from incompetency. This is what the commission plan of government regulates effectively. For every dollar spent a dollar in value is received. This is a revolution in all cities where the plan has been tested, and it will be a revolution to Janesville taxpayers, if they adopt the plan.

Cook, the explorer, has mysteriously disappeared and the supposition is that he is out on a still hunt for the north pole. With the pointers Peary has given him, he should have but little trouble.

The La Follette boys must, to be held in Milwaukee this week, has all the earmarks of a state convention. The early-morning of a scene to convention. The main body of a scene to convention. The main body of a scene to convention.

The churches ought to be well informed on the commission plan of government. The most of them here have taken a while at discussing it, and the end is not yet.

THE POET PHILOSOPHER

By WALT MASON

(Copyright, 1909, by George M. Shaw Adams.)

I gazed upon that mighty flood, that welched as though in pain or woe, and fell with dull and sickening thud, under the clouds far below. If there's a man with soul so dead that he unmoved can view that scene, he surely has a basswood head, and had it carved when it was green. O noble falls! Stupendous sight! O Nature's most emphatic fact! The gods were on their job all right when they designed that cataract. All other wonders are a dream, a foolish, feeble phantasm! The pauper falls of Europe seem absurd when they're compared with thee! Had I but seen thee in thy prime, when this proud nation had its dawn, in that fair, distant, golden time, before they strapped thy harness on, then I'd have written thee an ode, to make thy waters pause a while, but go and drag along thy hand, since beasts of burden are in style. Alas, that two such handsome falls, that should be kicking up their heels, come forth like horses from their stalls, to turn a million greasy wheels! To grind up glue, make lightning rods, and furnish cheap electric light—no wonder that the nice great gods look down in anger at the sight!

NIAGARA scene, he surely has a basswood head, and had it carved when it was green. O noble falls! Stupendous sight! O Nature's most emphatic fact! Alas, that two such handsome falls, that should be kicking up their heels, come forth like horses from their stalls, to turn a million greasy wheels! To grind up glue, make lightning rods, and furnish cheap electric light—no wonder that the nice great gods look down in anger at the sight!

LASTS OVER 30 YEARS

I just took out a loose tooth for an old man and in it I found a gold filling in good order. Upon inquiry I found that the filling had been in this tooth for 30 years.

Gold fillings well done make teeth last longer than ordinary fillings do. Grind teeth filled with gold remain perfectly sound through years of service.

Talk to me about the fillings needed in your teeth.

It is worth remembering that I extract teeth painlessly.

The roll call showed a large attendance of delegates from all parts of Mississippi. Much routine business is to be transacted during the three days the convention will be in session. CALDWELL PROBE RESUMED TODAY

PLEASANT STREET PREMISES WERE SEARCHED.

BY THE POLICE OFFICIALS

Nothing Which Would Throw Any Light on the Recent Botheries Was Uncovered.

William Caldwell, at whose farm in the town of Porter various articles of merchandise alleged to have been stolen from the railroads cars were discovered yesterday, and his fourteen year old son appeared at the police station at 10 o'clock this morning and were closely questioned by Acting Chief of Police John Brown, District Attorney J. L. Fisher, and C. & N. W. Detectives Charles M. Campbell and William Jeffery. Caldwell, ignoring the alleged admissions made to Officer Fungel yesterday, declared that he found the coffee drum filled with soda crackers, the eight cans of Lady brand Norwegian sardines, and various other articles in a hayrack and that his son discovered the package containing two men's caps from the Jones Clothing Co. of Kenosha and two gray children's sweaters under a horse's feet on a street in Jansville. The boy, on the other hand, maintained that his father brought all of those articles home after a trip to the city. Mr. Fungel maintained that Caldwell admitted yesterday that he took some of the goods from a car near Pleasant street and made overtures for a settlement with the railroad company. It is said that the sardines, when discovered in the hayrack in the town of Porter were hidden beneath a carpet under a bureau and that the sweaters and caps were concealed beneath a bed tick.

At Pleasant Street Farm.
Acting Chief Brown, the district attorney, and the two detectives, in company with Caldwell, drove out to the farm on Pleasant street which is now occupied by a tenant and made a careful examination of the premises. In the tobacco shed where Caldwell well has a bed and store-room he found several lawn-mowers, some exhibits of canned fruit, and various other miscellaneous articles, but nothing which could be identified as stolen property. There was a newly filled trench back of the shed but when this was explored with a spade it yielded nothing more than some current bushes, young apple trees, and other shrubbery. Mrs. John M. Caldwell, nee Taylor, who lives on a neighboring street, stated that she saw Caldwell passing beyond the farm with a red blanket sometime before daylight Tuesday morning.

Attic Was Searched.
The police stopped on the way back to police headquarters, at the little dwelling house, corner of Chatham street and Mineral Point avenue, which Caldwell turned over to J. F. Hayes and family on Sept. 27. A search was made of the attic where a quantity of the Caldwell household goods were stored but nothing of interest was discovered and the present tenants declared that the owner had not been near the place for several weeks.

Tools Painted Blue.
The officers who visited the farm in the town of Porter yesterday found, among other things, a large quantity of saws and carpenter tools, with the wooden handles invariably painted blue. Mr. Caldwell declares that the bag which he was carrying when he left the train from Jansville at Folwell station, Saturday night, contained a basket of grapes and other purchases made at the local stores. Regarding lawn mowers stolen from Miss Cora Pomeroy and Orion Sutherland last summer he has no knowledge. According to ex-Sheriff Fisher brooms and other articles stolen from the Economy store at Evansville were discovered on his premises about two years ago but the management refused to prosecute and no action was taken in the courts after the property had been recovered. Caldwell is said to be the man who applied to Judge Philford for an order permitting him to attend his mother's funeral about a year ago.

DRUGGISTS MEET AT THE HOTEL MYERS

Annual Dinner and Election of Officers Takes Place Today.

The Rock County Druggists' association met today at the Hotel Myers for their regular meeting and to celebrate the anniversary of their organization. Just thirty years ago the society was first organized, the organization meeting being called by E. H. Holmstrom, of Palmyra, the retiring secretary. With the exception of two years, he has served in that office continuously until the present time.

The members met at one o'clock today gathering for a one o'clock dinner served in the ordinary of the Myers hotel. After the repast, business affairs were taken up and matters of routine transacted. At this time occurred the annual election of officers.

J. P. Baker was elected president, C. A. Smith of Hollet, vice president, and J. M. Farnsworth of Hollet, secretary and treasurer. In recognition of his services during the past thirty years, the association elected that E. H. Holmstrom should, in spite of his residence outside the county, remain a member, making him an honorary member for life.

The association was invited to hold their spring meeting with the Jefferson County association at Palmyra, probably some time the latter part of May.

BEAUTIFUL GIRL IS BRIDE OF BLIND MAN

Miss Vera Moses Daughter Of Millionaire, Wedded To Edward M. Chamberlin Of Washington Today.

New York, Dec. 1.—None of the long list of notable weddings that have taken place in fashionable St. Thomas' church over attracted more attention than the ceremony performed there at noon today which made Miss Vera MacFarland Moses, whose father is a multimillionaire, the bride of Edward Matthews Chamberlin of Washington, D. C.

The white satin and tulle and orange blossoms with which the beautiful bride was arrayed were unseen by her husband, although she leaned proudly on his arm. The childish prattle of the two little flower girls was heard by him, but their happy faces, their baskets of flowers, counted for nothing.

For Mr. Chamberlin, who comes of an old Virginia family, is totally blind.

The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Styles. The bride was attended by Miss Helen Melbourne Meek of Virginia as maid of honor.

Mr. Chamberlin and his brother, Justice Morrill Chamberlin of Washington, for best man, and another brother, Capt. Paul E. Chamberlin of the United States Marine Corps, were among the ushers. The ceremony at the church was followed by a wedding breakfast at the Hotel Savoy where the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Moses, reside.

FARMERS' MOST PROSPEROUS YEAR

1909 IS GIVEN DANNER IN SECRETARY WILSON'S ANNUAL REPORT.

IMMENSE VALUE OF CROPS

Corn Alone Raised During Year Worth $1,720,000,000—Inquiry Into Price of Meat Shows Producers Don't Get Fair Share.

Washington, Dec. 1.—In his thirtieth annual report, made public today, Secretary of Agriculture Wilson declares that 1909 is entitled to the honor of being the most prosperous of all years in agriculture. He says the value of farm products for this year is $8,760,000,000, a gain of $820,000,000 over 1908, and points out that the value of products has nearly doubled in ten years.

The report says: "Eleven years of agriculture, beginning with a production of $1,117,000,000 and ending with $8,760,000,000! A sum of $7,643,000,000 for the period! It has paid off mortgages, it has established banks, it has made better homes, it has helped to make the farmer a citizen of the world, and it has provided him with means for improving his soil and making it more productive."

Farm Production of 1909.
The most striking fact in the world's agriculture is the value of the corn crop of 1909, which is about $1,720,000,000. It nearly equals the value of the clothing and personal adornments of the census of 1900. This crop exceeds in value the average of the crops of the five preceding years by 20 per cent.

Cotton is now the second crop in value, and this year's cotton crop is easily the most valuable one to the farmer that has been produced. With cotton that selling at 13.7 cents on the farm November 1 and with cotton seed selling for about 25 cents per ton, the lint and seed of this crop are worth about $850,000,000 to the farmer. No cotton crop since 1873 has been sold by farmers at as high a price per pound as this one.

Third in value is wheat, worth about $725,000,000 at the farm, and this largely exceeds all previous values. The November farm price was almost an even dollar a bushel, a price which has not been equalled since 1881. This is the third crop of wheat in this list of size, with 725,000,000 bushels. The hay crop is valued at $565,000,000; oats at $400,000,000; potatoes at $212,000,000; and tobacco at nearly $100,000,000. Beet and cane sugar and molasses and syrup, from farm and factory, will reach the total of about $95,000,000. The barley crop is worth $88,000,000, flaxseed $25,000,000, and 1,000,000,000 pounds of rice $25,000,000.

Comparisons with Former Years.

The production of all cereals combined is 4,711,000,000 bushels, an amount considerably greater than that for any other year except 1906. It exceeds the average of the preceding five years by 4.5 per cent. The value of all cereals in 1909 has never been equaled in a previous year. It is almost exactly $3,000,000,000, or 31 per cent. above the five-year average.

Compared with the average of the previous five years, all principal crops are greater in quantity this year except cotton, flaxseed, hops, and cane sugar; but without exception every crop is worth more to the farmer than the five-year average.

This is the year of the highest production for potatoes, tobacco, beet sugar, all sugar, and rice; next to the highest production for corn, oats and all cereals. Compared with 1908, gains in value are found all along the line, the exceptions being barley, buckwheat, lint and seed. The increase for cotton, lint and seed, is $208,000,000; wheat, $107,000,000; corn, $105,000,000; hay, $29,000,000; oats, $22,000,000; tobacco, $18,000,000; potatoes, $15,000,000.

Meat Prices.

Secretary Wilson has just finished a unique investigation made for the purpose of this report relating to the increase of wholesale prices of beef when sold at retail. Through inquiries of the bureau of animal industry in 50 cities, large and small, in all parts of the country, for the 50 cities the total retail cost charged to customers above the wholesale cost paid by the retailers is 38 per cent. In five cities the rate of increase is 20 per cent. or under; in ten cities, 21 to 30 per cent.; in 12 cities, 31 to 40 per cent.; in 12 cities, 41 to 50 per cent.; and in 11 cities over 50 per cent.

A gross profit of 20 per cent. was found in New York city and in Philadelphia; 28 per cent. in Buffalo, 36 per cent. in Boston, 17 per cent. in Baltimore, 42 per cent. in Washington, 46 per cent. in Chicago, 25 per cent. in Cincinnati, 23 per cent. in Omaha, 28 per cent. in Milwaukee and Detroit, 39 per cent. in St. Louis, 61 per cent. in Mobile, 39 per cent. in San Francisco, 24 per cent. in Seattle and 27 per cent. in Denver. The lower the grade of beef the greater the percentage of gross profit.

The farmer has failed to receive a share of higher beef prices with regard to the raw animal. The price level of two-year-old steers at the farm being regarded at 100 for 1896-1900, the price of such steers rose to 125.9 in 1908, declined to 85.5 in 1905, and rose, to 100.8 in 1900, all for the date of January 1 and for prices at the farm, substantially before corn feeding had begun.

The price of corn in 1909 at the farm is represented at 218.6 compared with 100 for the price level of 1896-1900, and the price of the best native steers at the Chicago stock yards in the same year is 129.9, which is much above the "base" for the price of the animal at the farm, and much below the price of corn at the farm. The inference is that the farmer gets some return for the high-priced corn that he feeds to his steers, but not a return equal to 60 cents a bushel for his corn, which is the price for the last two years. As for the unfed steer, it does not participate in the upward movement of prices in its farm value.

The wholesale prices of fresh beef carcasses have increased in about the degree that the prices of steers have at the stock yards, and the retail prices of fresh beef have kept pace with the wholesale prices.

The increasing prices of fresh beef, therefore, are due to increasing prices of animals at the stock yards, and this is explained by the abnormal circumstances to which the raising of beef animals has been subjected in recent years.

Corn Too High for Hogs.

The farmer's situation with regard to hogs is more fair to the farmer than the cattle situation is, but still it is apparent that during the last three years the price of corn has been too high for the price of hogs. In the case of hogs the farmer has fully participated in the rising prices, whereas in the case of the farmer's cattle the unfed animals are barely as valuable as they were nine to fourteen years ago, and had not the price of corn ascended to a high figure, perhaps he would not share in the higher beef prices.

There has been a tendency of the animals and crops of the farm to increase in value per unit at the farm at a faster rate than all commodities have increased at wholesale.

Within the wholesale trade, also, farm products exceed all other classes of commodities in relative increase of prices since 1896, and food is exceeded only by farm products and by lumber and building materials. The only large exception to the leading place taken by farm products in rise of prices is unfed beef cattle, the farm price of which has barely begun to rise above the price level of 1896-1900 for beef cattle.

ONE DOSE RELIEVES INDIGESTION, GAS ON STOMACH AND HEARTBURN

Take a little Diapiesin now and your Stomach will feel fine in five minutes.

Every family here ought to keep some Diapiesin in the house, as any one of you may have an attack of indigestion or stomach trouble at any time, day or night.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a distressed, out-of-order stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you, or lay a bit of a lump in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Diapiesin and a 50-cent

There will be no sour food, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, debilitating headaches, dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with noxious odors.

Pape's Diapiesin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it prevents fermentation and takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is at any drug store, waiting for you.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to cure almost any chronic case of dyspepsia, indigestion, or sour food, or any other stomach trouble.

HUNTING SEASON'S DEATH TOLL.

33 Persons Are Killed, 36 Wounded by Deer Hunters.

Millwaukee, Dec. 1.—Thirty-three people killed and 36 wounded in the hunting season record from September 1 to December 1, which marks the close of the deer hunting season.
While the death toll is large, it is not as heavy as in 1907.

This list includes more men of prominence than ever before, among them being Dr. John R. Moore, one of the leading surgeons of the upper peninsula; Dr. H. L. Lincoln, one of the best known physicians of northern Wisconsin; John G. Hoelzel, a prominent business man of Milwaukee; A. H.
Miles, one of the leading druggists
of northern Wisconsin; and Isaac Bradley, reputed one of the largest land owners of central Wisconsin.

VETERINARY M. D.'S IN SESSION.

Illinois Association's Annual Meeting
Is Largely Attended.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—President N. I.
Stringer of Paxton called to order the twenty-seventh annual meeting of the Illinois State Veterinary Medical Association this morning in the Lexington hotel. The attendance was unusually large and a goodly number of new members were admitted at the first session. The president's address and the reading of several papers took up most of the day. Tomorrow
there will be two sessions and the meeting will close with the election of officers.

Judge Says Kill Criminals.

Fargo, N. D., Dec. 1.—Judge Charles Amidon of the United States district court for North Dakota advocated the execution of the professional criminal and the hopelessly insane in an address at the Congregational church.
He took the position that costs as much to keep a man in the penitentiary as it does to keep and educate
a man in a university, and thought that well behaved young men should not be deprived of an education by the expenditure of public money in keeping a naturally bad man under lock and key.

Calder Opens Reichstag.

Berlin, Dec. 1.—Emperor William opened the Reichstag by personally
reading the speech from the throne.
The speech dealt largely with domestic legislation and contained the important announcement that the government had prepared a measure extending the sick benefit insurance to the working classes not heretofore protected and creating a system of insurance for the dependent relatives of deceased workers.

LORDS HURL OUT THE BUDGET.

Bill Is Rejected by a Vote of 350
to 75.

London, Dec. 1.—The house of lords created a situation unprecedented in English history, at least in 300 years,
by refusing, by a vote of 350 to 75,
formal assent to the budget bill and referring it to the country itself for judgment, thereby in theory making it illegal to collect taxes and carry on the king's government.

After six days' debate, notable for the high standard of the oratory as well as for the able and convincing arguments arrayed on both sides for and against the budget, and placing in every possible light all the aspects of the great constitutional questions involved, the house of lords expressed its disapproval of the budget, but in no sense exciting, except that the house was packed to its utmost capacity and a great array of strange faces were seen on the benches, owing to the presence of numbers of peers
who only appear in the house in most exceptional cases.

The vote was on Lord Lansdowne's amendment, that the house was not justified in giving its consent to the bill until it had been submitted to the judgment of the country.

When the vote was announced as 350 to 75 in favor of the amendment a few mixed cheers were heard.

Blaze in Mansion of Clubman.

White Plains, N. Y., Dec. 1.—Fire broke out at Godfrey farm, the $1,000-000 country place of Howard Willott,
the widely known clubman, and was so well under way when discovered that the volunteer fire department found its task hopeless. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

Tug Aiding at Wreck, Burned.

Duluth, Minn., Dec. 1.—The tug Ottawa of the Reid Wrecking Company, burned to the water's edge six miles from Bayfield, Wis. It was lightering the steamer Hoyt, which went aground three weeks ago. The crew escaped.

Tribulations of the Major.

It was a custom 100 years ago to purchase British army commissions
for newly born babies, their rank progressing as opportunity occurred. One of these fortunate infants was the son of Sir William Honeyman. One day
a caller heard Lady Honeyman shout
from her bedroom door: "Jenn, what's the matter? What's all that crying in the nursery?" And Jenn answered:
"Oh, my lady, there's something the matter. It's only the major [till an infant] greeting [crying] for his parent."

PRELIMINARY SESSION HELD BY "DRY" FORCES

Prohibitionists Meet to Prepare for Convention When Campaigns
Will Be Mapped Out.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—The first biennial convention of the Anti-Saloon league will convene here next Monday, and likely times are looked for.

Plans will be perfected for some active legislation in the large cities with the view of abolishing the liquor traffic, and also for an appeal to congress
for an amendment to the interstate commerce laws that will prohibit the shipping of liquor into the "dry" sections of the country.

These facts became known at the opening session of the state superintendents and field workers of the league.

Delegates to the number of 150 from every state in the union convened to discuss the plans that will be submitted to the main convention when it meets next week.

The fact that Alabama by a vote of about 20,000 rejected the act to put a clause into the state constitution
which would abolish the liquor traffic
in that state has not disheartened the anti-saloonists, but, on the contrary,
has only started the fight, according to William H. Anderson, national legislative chairman.

NATION'S FINANCES PROSPER.

President's Message Will Show Deficit
Is Fast Disappearing.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The president in his message to congress will have a rosy picture of prosperity to present
in connection with the financial conditions of the country.

The deficit, which reached nearly $100,000,000 a year ago, has been cut down to $50,000,000 during the year
and at the present rate at which receipts are increasing, soon will have disappeared altogether, to make way
for a surplus.

The financial section of the message
was compiled and read by the president at the meeting of the cabinet.

Official figures show an actual working balance in the treasury offices of $26,533,680, though the total balance in the general fund, which includes the working balance in the treasury offices, the balance in the banks and in the treasury of the Philippine Islands and other details, is placed at $52,075,172.

The excess of all disbursements
over all receipts is $262,747, but the excess of all disbursements over all receipts so far this fiscal year is only $14,295,956, as against $84,772,399 for the same period in the previous fiscal year.

IMPLEMENT DEALERS IN SESSION

Des Moines Entertains Association in Annual Convention.

Des Moines, Ia., Dec. 1.—W. D. Hoyt
of Manchester, president of the Iowa Implement Dealers' association, called that body to order for its fourteenth annual convention at ten o'clock this morning in the Y. M. C. A. hall. The attendance was most satisfactory,
and in addition to the members there
were present a large number of ladies, manufacturers, jobbers and traveling
men. After an invocation by Rev.
Robert B. H. Bell, Gov. H. F. Carroll made an address of welcome, to which
P. F. Arney of Marshalltown responded. President Hoyt delivered his annual address, and then C. L. Giesgen spoke on "Our Future."

Last night the Manufacturers' Implement and Vehicle club entertained
the dealers and their wives at a musical, and this evening it will again
be the host at a smoker and theater party. At tomorrow's session the chief addresses will be by W. R. Thomas of Oskaloosa and George Yuell of Cedar Rapids. Friday will be devoted mainly to committee reports and the election of officers.

Janesville's stores are inviting out-
of-town shoppers.

ROCK ISLAND AND FRISCO MERGER IS DISSOLVED

Combination of Railroads It Is Officially Announced Will Cease To-Day.

New York, Dec. 1.—The separation
of the Frisco and Rock Island railroads
will be officially announced to-day.

It is understood that B. F. Yankum and James Campbell of St. Louis will resume control of the Frisco. It is not yet clear what agreement, if any, they have reached with the Hawley combination of railroads, which includes the Chesapeake & Ohio and the Milwaukee, Kansas & Texas.

There are many reports current about future rearrangements. One credits an alliance between the Frisco
and Hawley roads, provided the law and the bankers will stand for it.
Another relates to a possible combination of Rock Island, Wabash and Lehigh Valley.

But after today's Rock Island and Frisco are to part company, thus dissolving one of the largest of railway mergers, involving a capitalization of more than $500,000,000.

CANNON SEES A BUSY SESSION.

Speaker Declares Congress Will Accomplish Much at Short Meeting.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The short session of congress, which opens on Monday, is going to accomplish something besides passing the appropriations, according to Speaker Joseph G. Cannon, who has arrived here.

"The prediction that little will be done outside of appropriation bills is usually made at the beginning of a session, and I have never known it to come true," said the speaker.

"The appropriations are the first consideration, and will require careful thought. I have no doubt congress will co-operate with the president in an effort to keep the appropriations
within the revenues."

The speaker also said that congress is awaiting the president's message just as anxiously as the country is.

Talks on Snake Culture

No. 50—Talking Too Much

If you have much experience with Jolly Good Fellows, you frequently meet
the man who insists that he can drink
like a gentleman. He takes a pride in carrying his load gracefully, and he is thoroughly convinced that he never makes any bad breaks. But the man who "drinks always does make bad breaks. If he doesn't do anything else, he talks too much. The greatest bore in the Old Home Town is one of those gentlemanly boozefighters who have heard about. He is always well dressed,
he can walk a chalk line at a moment's notice, and nobody ever saw him the worse for his jab in the ordinary meaning of the term. But if he gets you in a corner he will talk until your whiskers wither and fall off. He will tell you his personal history from the time he left the cradle until 9:47 o'clock last night.
You may yawn and groan and make the ground hailing sign of distress, but he won't notice it. He thinks that he is being vastly entertaining, and that you are profiting largely by the feast of reason and flow of soul. People avoid him as much as they can, but he nails a victim every once in a while. One of these days some soul-weary citizen will refuse to be bored. He will gather up the talker, and roll him into a wad, and drop him into a sewer. No matter how graciously you carry your package, the great hailing sign of distress, but he

fact that you carry it makes you a bore.

REMARKABLE OVERCOAT OPPORTUNITY

AT OUR ADJUSTMENT SALE

AT THIS SALE we are offering for cash unprecedented values in overcoats for this time of the year. The severe winter weather is coming, although you have as yet scarcely felt the need of an overcoat. You can get the whole season's value out of an overcoat and still realize a big saving by purchasing here and now. This sharp reduction applies to every overcoat in our enormous stock. Nothing is held in reserve. It includes the high-grade dress blacks, grays and browns, full silk-lined, in chevrons, unfinished worsteds and vicunas, and the fancy mixed patterns of the famous Hart, Schaffner & Marx make in a variety of sizes. The wide range of choice consists of this season's newest models with snappy, irreproachable style for the young fellow, and more conservative lines for the conservative man. Both the plain collar and the popular stormy weather "protector" collar styles are found in our line.

Every garment is plainly marked, showing the regular price and the reduced sale price. This is not a closing out sale, but we must make quick cash transactions at keen sacrifices of profit in order to settle the estate of the late T. J. Ziegler. It will pay you to seriously consider these strong reductions.

WOMAN'S PAGEThe Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

ARE you ever guilty of following the line of least resistance?

I wonder if you sense just what I mean by that?

Opposite my office is a lunch room.

It is not a good lunch room. The meat is apt to be poor; the tablecloths are likely to be soiled, and the service is sure to be bad.

And yet I have gone to that lunch room almost every noon this fall.

Why? Because it is the nearest place.

I know that I won't get wholesome food there. I know that the distasteful conditions will keep me from healthy enjoyment of my meal, and yet I go there because it is the easiest place for me to get to.

That is what I mean by following the line of least resistance.

The line of least resistance leads down the high way of mediocrity.

Most people follow the line of least resistance, and that's why most people don't get anywhere in the world.

Every single step you take in its direction leads you farther from success.

It isn't that any little thing, such as my taking my lunch at the most convenient and least desirable place, does anyone any great harm in itself.

It is just that each little step you take in following the line of least resistance weakens your ability to refuse to take the next and larger step.

Every time you do a little thing because it is the easiest thing to do, you weaken your ability to firmly decide in some larger matter to do the best and wisest, though hardest thing.

"I guess I'll be a teacher," I heard a college girl say once. "No, I don't particularly care about teaching. I'd much prefer private secretary work, but that would mean that I'd have to take up stenography. I'd have to put in four or five months at it, anyway, and I don't know what system to take or what school to go to, and father doesn't exactly like the idea. It would be much simpler for me to teach just as the other girls are going to, and I dare say I shall like it well enough when I get started."

Today she is a poor school teacher.

She might have been—indeed, from what I know of her work, I am quite sure she would have been—a good private secretary.

But she chose to follow the line of least resistance.

Many people follow the line of least resistance in friendship—get what satisfaction they can from the people with whom they chance to be thrown the most instead of hardily fostering, despite inconvenience and distance, the beautiful intercourse with those few in whom they have found real congeniality.

In the same way, I think, many people follow the line of least resistance in marrying—not only women, who, to a certain degree, can't help it, but also men, who can.

It may not always be wrong to follow the line of least resistance, because it may not always mean harming yourself or anyone else.

But it is always foolish, because it does always mean depriving yourself of some ultimate happiness that you might have had.

—And, on second thought, since it is the duty of all of us to get as much happiness out of life as is compatible with our duty to others, I guess, after all, it is wicked.

RESCUED AND ELOPED VIA AUTO.
Mrs. Fred L. Harley.

(Staff Special)
Philadelphia, Pa.—A romance which had its beginning five years ago, when Miss Ethel B. Shive, of 3711 Spruce street, was found lying unconscious in the middle of a lonely road by Fred H. Harley of Quakertown, Pa., as he was touring in his automobile, culminated happily recently, when the couple eloped in the same automobile to Whittemarsh, where they were married by Rev. A. L. Miller.

When Miss Shive recovered consciousness five years ago she found her future husband bending over her while his chauffeur broke speed laws in search for a physician. An attachment sprang up and before Miss Shive had recovered from her injuries the couple were engaged.

Opposition on the part of the girl's mother caused the engagement to be broken off, and they parted. They did not meet again until a few weeks ago. They had not forgotten each other in the meantime, however, and when Mr. Harley suggested and eloquent, Miss Shive signified her willingness.

Then Mr. Harley, who is the son of J. S. Harley, a wealthy manufacturer of Quakertown, and once elected to succeed Congressman Wagner in Washington, mortgaged his home, and obtained a license. He then came on to Germantown where Miss Shive met him. She had informed her mother she was going to spend the night with friends in Germantown, and the first intimation the mother had of the marriage was when a telegram reached her from the couple.

Five years ago Miss Shive was motoring through Pennsylvania. Outside of Quakertown the machine skidded and crashed into a telegraph pole. She was thrown out and lay unconscious in the road. Mr. Harley passed in his automobile and picking her up he bade his chauffeur hurry to a physician. While she was under a physician's care, Mr. Harley sent her flowers and books and called frequently when she was convalescent.

It was not long before they became engaged, but when the girl's mother heard of it she sternly forbade any such thing. The girl was only 18 years old then and she after vainly trying to persuade her mother to allow her to marry her fiance, agreed to see him no more.

Mr. Harley accepted his dismissal but neither he nor Miss Shive could reconcile themselves to the parting. With thoughts of her sweetheart in her mind, Miss Shive, who is a belle in the West Philadelphia set, declined many offers of marriage from eligible young men. Then a few weeks ago they met again and Mr. Harley proposed the elopement. Remembering her experience with her mother and taking no chances on her second refusal, Miss Shive consented to elope. The couple are now on their honeymoon.

Party Frocks of Battle.

Many mothers who confine themselves to the simplest of frocks for their little daughters wear on all ordinary occasions allow their instinct for fresh ideas to run riot when it comes to "party" frocks. Such a one is given here, beautifully dainty, being made of fine French batiste and eyelid embroidery. The little short waist of tucks is folded surplus fashion into the skirt and trimmed with narrow eyelid insertion over the shoulders, strips of the insertion confining the puffs of the little short sleeves. The skirt is tucked into the waist and has three flounces of the embroidery and a slash of pale yellow liberty. The dress is worn over a silk slip of yellow.

The Optimist's Corner

Daily Helps to Health and Happiness

By GEORGE F. BUTLER, A.M., M.D.

The true danger of every form of mental exercise is the addition of worry. Laborious mental exercise is healthy unless it be made anxious by necessary or unnecessary difficulties. Regular mental labor is best carried on by introducing into it some variety. New work gives time for repair better than attempt at complete rest, since the active mind finds it impossible to evade its particular work unless its activity be diverted into some new channel. During the new work a fresh portion of brain comes into play, and the tired portion of the brain is given a chance to rest and recover its strength.

Excessive competition in mental labor is ruinous at all ages of life. The combination of mental and physical fatigue is exceedingly injurious. Long journeys, each day to and from business, are hurtful. The idea that mental labor may be advantageously supplemented by violent muscular exercise is an error. Moderate and regular exercise, on the other hand, favors mental work. The practical point is to so regulate the physical labor that it shall not induce fatigue.

HEARTS OF TENNESSEE A VERY INTERESTING PLAY

Theatre-Goes Much Pleased With Production at Myers Theatre
Last Evening.

A well-filled house greeted the production of "The Hearts of Tennessee,"
by the Carl W. Cook Stock company at the Myers theatre last evening.
The play, one of those southern models, depicting the life and emotions of the people of the south, has a plot of human interest. The stock company which presented it is composed of competent actors and the show was especially pleasing to the audience. Handicapped spectators and comedians stands between acts added to the enjoyment of the evening. This afternoon a matinee was given and
tonight "The Mysteries of New York"
will be played.

Town Gets Decision
The jury in the Green county election court in the case of Jos. W. Mc-Gill vs. Cadiz township, an action for damages resulting from an accident
on the public highway, was decided in favor of the township. The jury was out less than an hour. This is the second case of the kind won by the same township at this time of the court. The case now on trial is a highway damage case against the town of Jefferson. John Deat is the plaintiff.

Sold 15,000 Stamps

The local Christmas stamp campaign
in the interest of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association opened with a rush, the Woman's club quickly disbursing the first consignment of 15,
000 stamps. A second order for 10,
000 more stamps was filed by telegraph.

The steps of the Universalist church, which has been a fixed feature of the landscape of the city for more than fifty years, is being torn down
and only the lower section will be rebuilt. The spire is one of the highest in the city. Exposure to the elements
these many years has decayed the tim-

LETTERS ARRIVE IN LARGE BUNDLES NOW

Friends of Santa Claus Enjoy Writing
Him Their Wishes for Christmas.

Santa Claus' mail bag at the Gazette
office is, beginning to bulge out considerably. The letters his little friends are writing him are coming in
by the score and they all find their way into his special mail bag that on Saturday, the 11th of December, will be forwarded to him at his home in the North Pole region.

You know Santa Claus likes to get letters from his little boys and girls that live in this busy world and he wants to read every one of them.
He is not as young as he was when your "Daddy" and "Mamma" were little boys and girls so he asks you to write on only one side of the paper
and as plainly as possible. Address the letters to Santa Claus, care of the Janesville Gazette, and he will get them for certain.

AFTON BAPTIST MEN TO ORGANIZE A SOCIAL CLUB

Meeting to Be Held on Thursday to Complete Plans for Organization of Society.
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Afton, Nov. 30.—When the annual meeting of the Baptist church was held recently, the question of organizing a men's club was discussed, but no definite action was taken at that time. Now, however, it is planned to perfect an organization, if such a move is thought advisable, and to this end a meeting has been called for Thursday evening, Dec. 24, at 7:30 o'clock, to which the men of Afton
and vicinity are cordially invited. The meeting will be held at the church and Pastor Coud wants it understood that all men will be welcome.

At a recent meeting of the Loyal Americans, held at the home of William Denoyer, the annual election and installation of officers took place, with the following result: President—Otto
E. Gehling; vice-president—Nellie Mc-
Crean; secretary and treasurer—Lucy Denoyer; chaplain—Anne Oakley; orderly—Ella C. Gehling; sergeant—
Fred Kethelohn; 1st corporal—U. G.
Walter; 2d corporal—Anna Kethel-
ohn; sentinel—Ella M. Denoyer;
guard—Stewart Oakley; medical examiner—Dr. J. F. Pember. Ex-President William Denoyer acted as installing officer, and inducted into their respective positions, all of the newly elected officials, except the medical examiners. The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Nellie McCrean, Saturday
evening, Jan. 15, 1940.

Beginning next Sunday evening and until further notice, services at the Baptist church will begin at 7 o'clock.
Instead of 7:30 as heretofore. Pastor
Coud is preaching a series of Sunday evening sermons on "Lessons from the Life of Paul" which are both interesting and helpful.

A campaign for new members has been inaugurated by the local Woodman camp, which it is hoped, will result in the accession of several in Afton
and vicinity, who are eligible for membership.

Next Sunday the members of the Baptist Sunday school will begin to plan for the annual Christmas entertainment, and a good attendance is desired, in order that all interested may have a voice in determining the nature of the observance. At last Sunday's session of the school L. C.

Waters was elected assistant superintendent in place of Mrs. F. G. Codd, resigned.

DECIDE THAT LAWS
SHOULD BE STUDIED

First Wisconsin Conference on Criminology Believes Chair Should Be Established in State Law School.

As a result of the conference held in Madison last week, at which Judge
Charles Field, Judge Frank of Beloit
and District Attorney Fisher were in attendance, it was decided that the only effective method of studying the weaknesses in the present system of administering justice would be brought about by the establishment at the University of Wisconsin of a professorship for the comparative and
critical study of the operation of remedial law. The judges, attorneys, physicians and criminologists who attended the conference agreed that the true lines of progress in the administration of justice can be ascertained
only by thorough and disinterested investigation, and that the natural place
for such laborious and scholarly research is the state university.

Whereas by Popular Dissatisfaction
The degree of popular dissatisfaction with the administration of justice in this country, the members of the conference believed, warranted the establishment of such a chair. There is no the least doubt, it was said, that such a progressive step would be applauded both in this country and abroad. Not only would Wisconsin
soon be recognized as a model state
in respect to its system of administration of justice, but the results of the investigation would influence the policy of every state in the union.

Urges Regents to Provide Chair
The committee on resolutions for the conference presented the matter
in its report, which was adopted by the whole conference. These resolutions are as follows:

Whereas, the true lines of progress
in the administration of justice can be ascertained only by thorough and disinterested investigation, and

Whereas, the natural place for such careful and scholarly research is the state university, be it

Resolved, That this conference respectfully petition the regents of the University of Wisconsin to consider the advisability of establishing a professorship for the comparative and
critical study of the results of the operation of remedial law.

These resolutions will be presented to the board of regents of the university at their meeting today by the secretary of the conference, Vroman Mason, district attorney of Dane county.

Expert to Study Crime
The professor appointed to this chair would make an exhaustive study of the workings of various forms of criminal trial and punishment in the several states, in order to determine their relative value. He would study, for example, the precise causes of the delay in trial and punishment, to find out whether they are attributable to needless postponements, to embarrassing procedure, to overcrowded court houses, or to waste of judicial power
by faulty organization of the courts.
A careful study would be made of the jury system and its faults. A careful examination would be made of reversals of decision on appeals in criminal cases to ascertain what proportion were on technicalities and practice, and what proportion on substantive law. The results of releasing adult first offenders on parole, the various types of juvenile courts and their workings, and similar matters pertaining to organization and administration of justice would also form a basis of the professor's work.

Complete Investigation Necessary
The recent conference showed that such a careful investigation is necessary because of the lack of any definite information covering a wide range of experience. All there is to go by is theoretical reasoning, or a comparatively small range of personal observation. There is no body of facts by which the merits of proposed changes
can be tested. The scientific way, therefore, to go about improving this branch of administration, the conference declared, is to get some thorough,
scholarly investigation on a basis.

Modesty is a negative term. That which is indecent exposure in a ball-room is the height of convention on a sea shore. Certainly this man had no concept of such a quality. He had not noticed before when she had come out barefoot to swim to the barrier reef, and yet somehow she fancied as he stared at her approaching that this time he marked the difference. And a slow, fiery blush flamed over her from her bare feet to her bare head, extended along her bare arms. She stopped under the persuasion of impulse to turn and go back to the cave and resume her clothing, at least so long as it might last. But she was a woman of strong will. She reasoned that all the emotions to which she was subject were in her own bosom; that the man before her neither knew nor cared as to the things which vexed her. So she went on.

She had in her hand the sailor's knife, with the blade open. She could not tell exactly in what mood her prisoner might be. Indeed, she approached him with a certain terror, accounted for partly by the situation and partly by the fact that in making this change in her garments she had, as it were, cut herself off from civilization and brought herself in some degree at least nearer his physical level. But she could not leave him there all night, summoning her courage, therefore, and with a bold front before him, she advanced to the tree and untied the rope from the trunk and untied it from his neck as well. He stood silent, unresisting through it all, a rather pitiful figure she thought at first, until he was freed from the degrading halter.

Then she waited in intense and eager curiosity as to what he should do next. The iron in his situation had eaten into his soul. He had been mastered by force. He could not understand it. He did not love the mystery. Still, without the knowledge of his own powers, there occurred to him no way to resent the ignominy to which he had been subjected. He turned and walked away from her. She stood amazed, staring after him. It was the first time he had withdrawn himself from her presence. Where was he going? Was this a declaration of war? Was there to be enmity between them? In vague terror, moved by a sudden impulse again, she called him.

"Man!" she said.

He stopped, hesitated, looked back, turned and went on again. He was deeply hurt. She could not see him go. It was unthinkable that he should go. He was dangerous away from her. By her side she could control him.

"Man!" she called again.

But this time he did not heed. An idea sprang to her brain, working quickly under the pressure. She lifted up her voice, for he was far from her now and plodding steadily, doggedly toward the trees.

"John!" she cried. "John Revell Charnock!"

And at that sound the man stopped. He turned and looked at her again. "John!" she repeated. "John!"

She approached him. As she did so and when she could get near enough to him, she observed that wrinkling of the brow, that look of amazement which she had noticed before. It was as if some latent memory, some recollection of the past, were struggling against the obscurity of years, as if something were endeavoring to thrust itself through a sea of oblivion and forgetfulness that overwhelmed his mind, as if she were a voice which brought back things he could neither understand nor utter, and yet which meant something to him.

"John!" she cried again, coming nearer to him.

She thrust out her hand; she touched him. Again she noticed that strange emotion consequent upon her touch. She laid her hand upon his shoulder. There was amity, confidence, reassurance. She patted him as she might a dog.

"John!" she said, and then she turned away and walked toward the shore.

Obviously he followed her. She thrust the knife between her waist and the rope which she had rapidly twisted about her middle and walked on in triumph. If he had learned something, so had she. Some one else had called this man John in days gone by. The sound was not unfamiliar to him. He answered to his name. That was he, John Revell Charnock! She felt as if she were entering upon the solution of the mystery of his presence. Perhaps the morrow would tell. She would examine that boat and those decaying evidences of humanity on the farther shore.

She felt elated that night ere she went to sleep in the cave. The glow to the mystery she fancied was in her hand. She had such occupation before her as she had never hoped to come upon in a desert island, at least. The rope added to her security. By piling stones before the entrance to the cave and reinforcing them with the boards from the wreck of the boat and some fallen tree branches on the shore, she made a sort of a barrier to it, not a barrier that would have kept out of the cave any one who desired to enter, but one which would have to be removed before one could enter. And she so arranged matters, tying the end of the rope to her wrist, that any attempt to remove it would immediately awaken her. That night she slept secure and unmolested.

CHAPTER IV.

Lesson and Labor.

The task to which she set herself in the morning would have been an impossible one to many women, and indeed it was a hard one to her. The buried boat lay in the sand some rods distant from the nearest tree. There was absolutely no shelter from the fierce heat of the tropic sun. She was not yet fully accustomed to it, and indeed perhaps she never would be able to endure it without some sort of a head covering. She improvised a bonnet from the leaf of a low springing palm tree, which, with her remaining handkerchief, she tied about her head. And then with her watchful friend by her side she descended the beach to the boat and began to dig.

It was hard and very tedious work. With the flat make-shift shovel in the shape of the rough piece of board it was almost impossible to lift the sand. Yet she attacked the task resolutely and persevered steadily for a long time until the sweat beaded her forehead, her back ached, her hands, unused to manual toil of any kind, were almost blistered. She realized at last that she would have to give it over.

She wondered as she ceased her labors whether the constant observation which the man had subjected her to would enable him to continue the

Bright and Steady The Rayo Lamp

A bright and steady light depends upon the construction of the lamp.
 The best skill has put forth its best effort in perfecting the Rayo Lamp.
 As the air is fed to the flame—so does the light burn. The easy-flowing current of air through the air-tube of the Rayo Lamp secures a uniform light, with never a flicker or flare.
 The ideal family lamp. Made of brass throughout and beautifully nickel-plated.
 The Rayo is a low-priced lamp, but you cannot get a better lamp at any price.
 Once a Rayo user, always one.
